Bog Bird of the Year!

Connecticut
Warbler

A loud but retiring warbler that is synonymous with Black Spruce-Tamarack bogs. Numbers are declining.

Pitcher
Plant

Carnivorous plant that is an eye-catching bug-catcher.
Only lives in open-canopy acidic bogs.

2025 SAX-ZIM PROJECTS

- Complete 700' boardwalk extension at Auggie's Bogwalk
- Improved 1.18 miles of trail at Wood Thrush Woods
- Expand Welcome Center overflow parking area
- Improve the "green roof" of the original Welcome Center

*Sandhill Cranes have returned to Sax-Zim
as of early April.
They are now courting and preparing to nest.
Their numbers have increased dramatically in the last few decades. They use meadows, wet willow flats, and hayfields.
Land preservation is crucial for all bog critters!

Thanks from "owl" of us in Sax-Zim!

THANKS FOR A GREAT WINTER!

Ten thousand visitors? Thanks in part to the irruption of Great Gray and Boreal owls, we also had an influx of birders and photographers! And most left the Bog having had at least one memorable experience. And that is the beauty of Sax-Zim—You come with certain expectations, and the Bog may or may not fulfill those, but you will certainly go away with other magical encounters and lifelong memories.

IRRUPTION!

We had not experienced a MAJOR Boreal Owl irruption in many years. On top of that, we enjoyed an invasion of Great Gray Owls. Of course these irruptions are bittersweet events. Great for us humans, but owls had to use precious energy to reach Sax-Zim and better hunting grounds.
